Gary was born and raised in Kansas City, Missouri and has been playing bass since 1967 when he did his first gig for money, a whopping $1.25 (things haven't changed that much either). He has been touring and doing recording sessions ever since. He has worked with many great musicians including a short stint with Michael Martin Murphy and having the great privilege of playing bass on numerous tours with the legendary fiddle great Vassar Clements from 1983-2003.

Although he has played and recorded with mostly with American musicians, Gary toured and recorded several years with Canadian Singer/Songwriter Cameron Molloy and played on Cameron's song "Diamond's in the Dark", which went to #2 on the Canadian music charts.

Since 1993 he has also played and recorded with past Canadian Juno nominee and current Creston resident, Mark Koenig. Gary can be heard doing the bass work on Mark's most recent release Living This Life which is often featured on CIDO.

In addition to being the head wrangler on a cherry ranch, Gary is the ringmaster of "The Barnyard Blues Music Hour" on CIDO Friday nights at 7:00 p.m. The program highlights much of his musical career, folks he has worked with, and other close friends he has made in the business through music and story.
